Water Rights

L.1 Introduction

The proposed project includes C.W. “Bill” Jones Pumping Plant (Jones Pumping Plant) near Tracy, California, used for the operation of the Delta-Mendota Canal (DMC). This pumping plant includes six pumps with a total pumping capacity of 4,602 cubic feet per second.

Through Water Rights Decision 1641 (D-1641) (SWRCB 2000, as revised), the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) amended the Bureau of Reclamation’s water right permits. The amended permits allow Central Valley Project (CVP) water to be diverted at the Harvey O. Banks Pumping Plant, subject to the permission of the California Department of Water Resources, as part of joint operations of the State and Federal export facilities. This joint operation of the CVP and State Water Project (SWP) is commonly referred to as the Joint Point of Diversion.

The Plan Formulation Report (PFR) identifies six alternative plans using various combinations of CVP and SWP facilities to accomplish the project goal. Alternatives A1 and A2 propose to use only CVP facilities and Alternatives B1, B2, C, and D propose to use CVP and SWP facilities to pump and convey water to avoid or mitigate impacts to Sacramento-San Joaquin River Delta export contractors.

In addition to CVP and SWP water rights, the proposed project may have impacts on other San Joaquin River (SJR) water rights. Four PFR alternative plans propose to change the use of flow from New Melones Reservoir for enhancing its water supply, which may result in lower flow in the Stanislaus River at certain times between New Melones Reservoir and the SJR.

L.2 Scope of Work

This appendix includes inventory of existing water rights on the SJR between discharge and Vernalis and Stanislaus River between New Melones Reservoir and the SJR; potential impacts of the proposed project on existing water rights, potential impacts of existing water rights on the proposed project, need assessment for the protection from unauthorized diversion of the recirculation water; and identification of a mechanism for the protection of in-stream flows from unauthorized diversions.

L.3 Water Right Inventories

L.3.1 Central Valley Project/State Water Project Water Rights

An inventory of the D-1641 water rights is shown in Table L-1. Out of the 30 water rights listed in Table L-1, four of them are on the SJR in Madera County, which is upstream of proposed discharge into the SJR.

L.3.2 San Joaquin River Water Rights Between Discharge and Vernalis

This section of the SJR flows through Merced, Stanislaus, and San Joaquin counties. An inventory of SWRCB-issued water rights on the SJR in Merced, Stanislaus, and San Joaquin counties is shown in Table L-2. Of the 108 water rights shown in Table L-2, three are in Merced County, 18 in Stanislaus County, and 87 in San Joaquin County.

L.3.3 Stanislaus River Water Rights Between New Melones Reservoir and San Joaquin River

This section of the Stanislaus River flows through Calaveras, Tuolumne, Stanislaus, and San Joaquin counties. An inventory of SWRCB-issued water rights on the Stanislaus River in these four counties is shown in Table L-3. Of the 72 water rights shown in Table L-3, 25 are in Tuolumne County, 23 in Calaveras County, 17 in Stanislaus County, and 7 San Joaquin County.

L.4 Impacts on Existing Water Rights

As shown in Table L-1, the SJR has four D-1641 water rights, all of which are located upstream of the proposed discharge point. Therefore, the proposed project is not expected to have any impact on these water rights. However, CVP and SWP water rights may have to account for incremental evaporation and system losses, if any, due to the proposed DMC Recirculation Project.

The proposed project would add water in the SJR at the discharge, causing the river flow to be higher than the current condition. As a result, no negative impact should occur on the SJR water rights between the discharge and Vernalis gauging station.

Four of the six alternative plans evaluated in the PFR are proposing to release DMC recirculation water prior to explicit releases from New Melones Reservoir for Vernalis flow and water quality purposes. Such operational changes may cause the flow and corresponding stage in the Stanislaus River to be lower than the current condition. Such reduced flow in the Stanislaus River downstream of the New Melones Reservoir that may result from the implementation of Alternatives A2, B2, C, or D should not impact the water rights listed in Table L-3 because these releases from the reservoir are designated for Vernalis flow and water quality purposes only and are not available for diversion to these water right holders.

L.5 Impacts of Water Rights on the Project and Unauthorized Diversions Protection

The recirculation water from the proposed project in the SJR between discharge point and Vernalis gauging station could offer more opportunities to the water right holders to divert more water compared to the existing condition due to higher flow in the SJR. However, recirculation water is protected under existing water rights permits, which prevent others from diverting water appropriated by the permittee or licensee that the permittee or licensee releases into a natural river channel to convey the appropriated water to the permitted place(s) of use. As such, no additional protection of recirculated water is needed.

L.6 Conclusions

Because the proposed project would add new water to the SJR, it should have no negative impacts on CVP, SWP, SJR, and Stanislaus River water rights. However, the CVP water rights would have to account for incremental system loss, if any, due to the implementation of the proposed project.
